

Find your strengths

Worksheet for Building Resilient Tech Teams, Women Who Code

A strength is something you do well that also gives you energy. Teams hold up under pressure when people know their own strengths, know each other's, and know who covers the gaps. This worksheet moves from noticing, to naming, to sharing.

■ EXECUTING ■ INFLUENCING ■ RELATIONSHIP BUILDING ■ STRATEGIC THINKING

1 NOTICE

Think about the last two weeks of work. List specific moments, not job duties. Look for tasks where time disappeared, or that you would volunteer for again.

GAVE ME ENERGY

DRAINED ME

2 NAME

Read the appendix. Pick up to five themes that explain your energy list, ranked. Fill in the domain dot ○○●○○ and note the evidence.

THEME	DOMAIN	EVIDENCE FROM STEP 1
1	○○●○○
2	○○●○○
3	○○●○○
4	○○●○○
5	○○●○○

Already took the CliftonStrengths assessment? Write your top five results instead, then check whether your energy list agrees with them.

3 SHARE

Pair up. Four minutes each. The speaker picks one theme from their list and answers:

1. Which theme on your list felt obvious, and which surprised you?
2. Tell one story where this strength saved a project or a teammate.
3. What does it look like when you overuse it? Responsibility can turn into taking on everything. Harmony can turn into dodging a conflict the team needs.
4. What could a teammate do to put this strength to work more often?

Listener: catch one thing your partner undersold, and tell them.

4 MAP YOUR TEAM

Write each teammate's name and top themes in the domain where they fall. A person can appear in more than one box.

EXECUTING

Turning ideas into finished work.

INFLUENCING

Taking charge, speaking up, and making sure the team is heard.

RELATIONSHIP BUILDING

Building the connections that hold a team together.

STRATEGIC THINKING

Taking in information and thinking about what could be.

Where does the team cluster?

Which domain is thin, and how do we cover it?

Who do we lean on when things go wrong? Are they at risk of burning out?

5 COMMIT

One way I'll use a strength this week

One gap I'll ask for help with, and who I'll ask

Appendix

The 34 themes

Gallup groups 34 themes into four domains. The definitions here are short paraphrases for workshop use. For the full descriptions and the assessment, see gallup.com/cliftonstrengths. CliftonStrengths and the 34 theme names are trademarks of Gallup, Inc.

EXECUTING Turning ideas into finished work.

9 THEMES

Achiever	A steady internal drive to get things done. Finishing work is what recharges you.	Arranger	Coordinates many moving parts and reshuffles people and resources to find the best setup.
Belief	Anchored by core values that give the work meaning and set your direction.	Consistency	Wants clear rules applied equally to everyone. Fairness matters more than exceptions.
Deliberative	Takes decisions seriously, spots risks early, and thinks before committing.	Discipline	Builds routines and structure. Order makes you productive.
Focus	Picks a direction, prioritizes, and keeps yourself and others on course.	Responsibility	Owens what you commit to and follows through. Your word is binding.
Restorative	Drawn to problems. You like finding what's broken and fixing it.

INFLUENCING Taking charge, speaking up, and making sure the team is heard.

8 THEMES

Activator	Turns talk into action. Impatient to start and learns by doing.	Command	Takes charge and says what others won't. Comfortable with confrontation.
Communication	Puts ideas into words people remember. Strong at explaining and presenting.	Competition	Measures progress against others and is motivated to win.
Maximizer	Takes something good and makes it excellent. Prefers building on strengths over fixing weaknesses.	Self-Assurance	Trusts your own judgment and acts with confidence when the path is unclear.
Significance	Wants to make an impact others can see and to be known for it.	Woo	Enjoys meeting new people and winning them over. Breaks the ice easily.

APPENDIX, CONTINUED

RELATIONSHIP BUILDING Building the connections that hold a team together.

9 THEMES

Adaptability	Goes with the flow and responds well when plans change at the last minute.	Connectedness	Sees links between people and events. Believes everyone is part of something larger.
Developer	Spots potential in people and enjoys watching them grow.	Empathy	Senses what others feel and can see a situation from their side.
Harmony	Looks for common ground and steers groups away from unproductive conflict.	Includer	Notices who is left out and brings them in.
Individualization	Sees what makes each person different and adjusts how you work with them.	Positivity	Brings energy and optimism that spreads to the people around you.
Relator	Builds deep, trusting relationships with a close circle.

STRATEGIC THINKING Taking in information and thinking about what could be.

8 THEMES

Analytical	Asks for the evidence. Looks for causes, patterns, and what the data actually says.	Context	Understands the present by learning how it got this way.
Futuristic	Energized by a picture of what could be and good at sharing it.	Ideation	Generates new ideas and finds connections between things that look unrelated.
Input	Collects information, articles, and resources because they might be useful later.	Intellection	Enjoys thinking for its own sake. Needs time to reflect and talk ideas through.
Learner	Loves the process of learning, not only the result.	Strategic	Sees the possible routes ahead and quickly picks the best one.

Name your values

Worksheet for Building Resilient Tech Teams, Women Who Code

Strengths are what you do well. Values are what you won't trade away. Name two, then turn them into behavior you can see.

I CHOOSE TWO

Use the list on page 7. Pick the two beliefs that matter most to you: the ones that guide you when things are unclear and give the work its purpose. Test each one:

- Does it describe who I am?
- Is it me at my best?
- Do I use it to make hard calls?

VALUE 1

VALUE 2

2 FROM WORDS TO BEHAVIOR

A value you can't describe as behavior is a slogan. Answer for each.

VALUE 1

VALUE 2

One or two behaviors that show this value in action

One or two behaviors that show this value in action

One or two slippery behaviors, where you drift outside it

One or two slippery behaviors, where you drift outside it

A time you fully lived this value

A time you fully lived this value

3 SUPPORT AND SELF-CHECK

Keep both values in mind.

1 Who knows your values and backs you in living them?

2 What does their support look like in practice?

3 How can you be kind to yourself while you do this hard work?

4 What early signs tell you you're drifting from your values?

5 How does it feel when you're living them?

6 How will you check yourself?
